ARC Limited

The UK market body for insurance and reinsurance
legacy management professionals

Why should you join ARC?

ARC is the London market body for global insurance and reinsurance professionals.

ARC is recognised as the voice of the legacy management sector by a wide range of government and market bodies, including the UK Financial Services Authority (FSA), the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS), the Department For Work and Pensions (DWP) and European Insurance and Occupational Pensions Authority (EIOPA).

By joining ARC, you can access this wide range of Membership Benefits:

Membership Benefits

Market representation – you can be part of the market body which promotes the interests of legacy professionals to other re/insurance sector bodies such as the ABI and the CII

A voice of influence – ARC represents the concerns of its members, participating in consultations, coordinating member responses and lobbying government and regulators. We campaign for any necessary changes

Market intelligence – you can access ARC members-only forums which discuss and debate topical issues with leading market practitioners and regulators

Market updates – you will receive regular e-circulars and briefings on the ARC website, providing key industry information and alerts on breaking news

Sector specific training – ARC members enjoy priority booking and preferential rates on our Academy training programmes which are designed especially for the legacy sector and are fully accredited by the CII

Significant savings – specially negotiated preferential rates on industry conferences (UK and international), trade publications and support services

ARC Congress – priority booking and preferential rates to attend one of the key networking and professional development events of the legacy management calendar

ARC Members Dinner – an evening event that recognises services to legacy during the past year with an easy blend of business and social interaction. Tables sell quickly and it is NEVER too early to book

Networking with decision makers – you will be invited to social events and professional meetings which are attended by some of the global leaders in the insurance and reinsurance sectors

You can see the full range of ARC services, events and Membership Benefits online at www.arclegacy.eu

What does ARC do?

ARC's membership spans reinsurers and insurers with discontinued business (both solvent and insolvent), service providers and associated professionals such as accountants and lawyers.

Over the past decade, ARC membership has grown and broadened to include companies from Europe and the US. ARC now has a global focus and membership is a great way to interact and meet other professionals and decision makers across your sector.

The objectives of ARC

- To promote excellence and best practice within legacy management
- To build sector skills through education and training initiatives
- To be a portal for all industry-specific data, information, resources and news
- To raise awareness and inform members of legacy issues affecting discontinued and live business
- To represent members to UK government, regulatory and market bodies
- To liaise with overseas government, regulatory and market bodies

ARC Academy

A CII accredited annual programme of courses specifically designed for people working in or alongside the legacy management sector. Speakers are leading market figures from UK and overseas. ARC Academy has support from the FSA and FSCS and is complementary to the CII degree programme.

ARC Information Briefings

ARC members receive regular e-newsletters, e-circulars and quarterly presentations, to keep them informed of all sector news.

ARC Dinner, Congress & Other Events

Our annual events calendar features leading internationally-renowned speakers and excellent peer networking opportunities.

Why we joined ARC

"One of my goals when establishing ARC was that the term 'Run-Off' would no longer be regarded as a dirty word and that the sector would become properly acknowledged as a chosen career path. I believe that these goals have been significantly advanced and that ARC has been a fundamental catalyst in bringing the management of Run-Off (now Legacy of course) issues much higher up the agenda, both for the ongoing market, the central processing bodies and for the various regulatory bodies. The very significant number of ARC members shows that there are many professionals who are interested in, and indeed proud to be, associated with run-off, whether their day-jobs are pure legacy or, increasingly, in the ongoing market."

David McGuigan, MD of LIMBO, CEDR Accredited Mediator
Previously first Chairman of ARC 1998 – 2005

"I have always been strongly committed to raising standards and passing on knowledge so I was delighted to take over ARC's Education brief and start the Academy. Run-off budgets are somewhat restricted when it comes to training and so ARC wanted to put on a range of relevant and professional courses that companies could afford to buy and not afford to miss. It is a source of pride to me that this was taken up by our membership wholeheartedly and several years on is still going strong."

Nigel Morson FCII

Previously first chairman of the Academy 2004 -2005, now retired from RSA.

"As a trade body operating in a market that is of its nature always looking to down size, ARC has ridden the tide of M&A's and retained the main body of legacy practitioners as members. I continue to recommend joining to anyone who wants to be part of this business."

William Bower FCII, CEO and Director of Met Re (UK) Ltd
Previously Deputy Chairman of ARC and Academy Chairman
2005-2010
